Early Intervention in the 21st Century

WEDNESDAY 2 DECEMBER 2015

DR TIM MOORE, MURDOCH CHILDRENS RESEARCH INSTITUTE, ROYAL CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL, MELBOURNE

EARLY CHILDHOOD INTERVENTION SERVICES AND THE NDIS: CHALLENGES AND OPPORTUNITIES

This interactive session will focus on the NDIS and the issues that face early childhood intervention services in working in this new environment. The session will take the form of a discussion of the three or four most pressing issues identified by participants, with some concluding points regarding the opportunities that the adoption of the NDIS offers.

BIOGRAPHY

Dr. Tim Moore is Senior Research Fellow at the Centre for Community Child Health and Murdoch Childrens Research Institute at the Royal Children’s Hospital, Melbourne. He has worked as an educational and developmental psychologist for over 30 years, and has played a leading role in the development of policy and training in the early childhood intervention field. In his current position, Dr. Moore works with colleagues from different disciplines in synthesising research evidence, providing advice to state and federal government and non-government agencies on best practices in early childhood, and conducting research and project work. He has been the principal writer on numerous CCCH reviews, reports and policy briefs, and is a frequent keynote and workshop presenter.
